DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1,10,12-16,23,34-36,38,39,45,56-61 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
2. Applicant argues that the references does not provide support for the amendment "interacting through the first web page with a second web page displayed to the party to be called" and as support, points to Specification, p.17, lines 15-16, "an interactive communication mechanism without causing any unnecessary ringing of "phones".

Applicant's arguments fail to comply with 37 CFR 1.111(b) because they amount to a general allegation that the claims define a patentable invention without specifically pointing out how the language of the claims patentably distinguishes them from the references.

Claim Objections

3. Claims 23,45,56-61 are objected to because of the following informalities:

With regard to claim 23, Examiner suggests replacing "the party" in line 18 with "the party to be called" in consistent with claim language.

With regard to claim 45, Examiner suggests replacing "the party" in line 16 with "the party to be called" in consistent with claim language.

With regard to claim 45,56-61, Examiner suggests replacing "computer readable medium" with "computer readable media" as Specification discloses.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1,10,13,14, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lund (U.S. Pat No. 6,658,100) in view of Myers et al. (U.S. Pat No. 6,868,140) and Grady et al. (U.S. Pat No. 5,712,906).

With regard to claim 1, Lund discloses requesting information about a party to be called from a protocol server ("a call is placed to the called party CPE", col. 3, line 22);

receiving a Universal Resource Locator (URL) in response to the request ("the originating CPE 106 receives the URL", col. 3, line 46) from the protocol server (database 44) ("querying a database 44 to retrieve the called party's URL", col. 3, lines 23-24) (See Also Internet server database 52, col. 3, line 49); and displaying to the caller one option includes accessing a first web page at the URL ("displaying the web page corresponding to that URL to the originating CPE 106", col. 3, lines 27-28).

However, Lund fails to explicitly show interacting through the first web page with a second web page displayed to the party to be called, and wherein the first web page includes the one or more connections options.

In a person placing a call, Myers discloses interacting through a first web page with a second web page (hierarchical menus, col. 7, line 11). In a subscriber device, Grady discloses one or more connections options (a menu of connection options, col. 14, line 5).

At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to include interacting through a first web page with a second web page as taught in Myers and one or more connections options as taught in Grady with Lund in order to provide for more possibilities using nested web pages and choices of connections

With regard to claim 10, Lund further discloses access the first web page through the protocol server (database 44) ("querying a database 44 to retrieve the called party's URL", col. 3, lines 23-24) (See Also Internet server database 52, col. 3, line 49).

With regard to claim 13, Lund further discloses the one or more connection options are also modified based one an identity of the caller ("based on the number dialed", col. 3, line 24).

With regard to claim 14, Lund further discloses the one or more connection options correspond to a phone number of the party to be called based on the number dialed", col. 3, line 24).

6. Claim 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lund, Myers, and Grady as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Nuutinen (U.S. Pat No. 6865681).

With regard to claim 12, the combination of Lund, Myers, and Grady discloses the method of claim 1. However, the combination fails to explicitly show one or more options are encoded using Session Initiation Protocol.

Nuutinen discloses one or more options are encoded using Session Initiation Protocol (a secured VoIP implemented with SIP, col. 2, line 17).

At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to include one or more options are encoded using Session Initiation Protocol as taught in Nuutinen with Lund, Myers, and Nuutinen in order to provide for a security VoIP.

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 23,34-36,38,39,45,56-61 are allowed.

8. Claims 15 and 16 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

9. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

With regard to claims 23 and 45, the prior art of record fails to anticipate or make obvious a device and a computer readable medium encoded with computer executable instructions that can "... receive a second request issued to the Universal Resource Locator; determine a location of the party to be called from a presence server; modify one or more connection options based on the location of the party to be called; generate a web page, wherein the web page includes the one or more connection options; and return the web page in response to the second request."

Conclusion

10. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Min (US 2004/0145604) discloses a service method and system between two mobile terminals, and displaying information stored in the first mobile terminal on a screen of a second mobile terminal. However, the effective date of Min does not qualify Min as prior art.
